

ALEXANDRIA.
WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 13.

ON MONDAY last a resolution was introduced in the U. S. House of Representatives for the imposition of an income tax. If modern democratic politicians were as wise as their predecessors they would force this resolution through the House as soon as possible, with a proviso that no more should be collected by such a tax than would be required for the payment of pensions. An income tax is not only the fairest, but the least burdensome of any that can be collected, and the earnest desire of every man in the country not subject to it would be to read himself so at the earliest practicable moment, and by every means in his power. The chief object of government now is the protection of property, as under the jury system, it has become necessary for every man to be the protector of his own life, and as rich people are the only ones who have large incomes they should not only be compelled to pay for the protection of their property, but if they be the right sort of men, they would be glad to do so. As poor people would not be subject to such a tax, and as the vast majority of the voters of the country belong to that class, of course it would be agreeable to them and therefore be popular. Then, too, the adoption of the suggested proviso would be an effectual means of restricting appropriations for pensions within proper and reasonable limits. With such a bill in operation there would be no need for the continuance of the tax on the necessities of life, and poor people, instead of as now being compelled to spend all their wages in the purchase of such necessities, could save at least one-half of them, and lay them by for rainy days. A bill of this sort would be of more practical benefit to the working men of the country, and, besides, be more popular than all the so-called labor bills that have been forced through Congress by the vociferous wild of the many demagogues in that body.

THE PROPOSITION for a reciprocity treaty between this country and Mexico is now being agitated in the latter country, and is received with much favor. There is no good reason why it should be adopted, but many many why it should be. And the same can be said of such a treaty with Canada. Trade with both Mexico and Canada should be as free as it is between the several States of the Union, and if it were, it would be increased an hundred fold, and the workmen of this country have constant employment in order to supply the increased demand for their products. And if such would be the result of reciprocity treaties with two foreign countries, and that it would be is not denied, why would not the advantages to this country be the greater if similar treaties should exist between it and all other countries.

THE LIKE of passenger transportation across the Atlantic has never been equalled. Ships are daily arriving at and sailing from New York crowded to their utmost capacity with passengers. But there is a vast difference between the condition of the passengers who come and those who go. The former are poverty stricken, and come to make money; the latter are rich and go away to spend it. The former come to compete with American labor, and their coming is unrestricted; and the most of the latter have grown rich by the reduction in the price of American labor, caused by the free importation of foreign workmen, and by the additional profit they are enabled, by the protective tariff, to make on the necessities of life.

AS THE time for the meeting of the national republican convention draws nearer, talk becomes more and more favorable to the nomination of Blaine, and Harrison, or Indiana, or McKinley, of Ohio. Sherman, it is supposed, will go into the convention with more delegates than any one else, but will never increase his strength. Were he out of the way, the convention would probably settle its business in short order. It also seems probable that a proposition will be made in the convention to abolish the whole internal revenue system, but that it will meet with strong opposition.

FROM THE latest dispatches it seems highly probable that the Emperor of Germany has but a short time to live. That such is the case is regretted by all right-thinking men, for during the few months of his reign he has so acted as to induce the belief that a long life would have been beneficial to all the people of his country. His death will be the more regretted by brave men because of the fact that he had learned, to use his own words, "to suffer without complaint."

AT A Senatorial civil service investigation yesterday it was developed that the special agent of the Treasury Department who selected the site for a public building in New York State, had his hotel bill there paid by the owner of the chosen site, and had subsequently written a letter in which he expressed the hope that some of his other indebtedness would be paid by the same party. Civil service reform doesn't show up well when exposed.

THE WASHINGTON evening newspapers mailed in Washington early in the afternoon, reach this city the next morning, and the Congressional Record, mailed in Washington before six o'clock every morning, reaches here late in the afternoon. Such is one of the beauties of the Washington postoffice, of which a republican has just been reappointed assistant postmaster, in accordance with the modern idea of civil service reform.

From Washington

[Special Correspondence of the ALEX. GAZETTE.]
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 13, 1888.

In the Senate yesterday evening a message was received from the House announcing the passage of the House bill allowing the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company to lay tracks from the north end of the Long Bridge to its property, near 13th street and Pennsylvania avenue.

In the District of Columbia appropriation bill, as considered by the Senate yesterday in committee of the whole, an amendment was adopted appropriating $5,000 as an emergency fund, which the District Commissioners say will be used to keep the Potomac open during the winter. In the House, on motion of Mr. Lawler, of Illinois, the Senate bill for the relief of Laura E. Maddox, widow of the late Joseph H. Maddox, of Alexandria, was substituted on the calendar for the House bill on the same subject.

The House to day at an early hour resumed the consideration of the Mills bill. When a vote on this bill will be reached is as indefinite now as ever, and the Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee, to whom the Democratic caucus left the matter, are as much in doubt concerning it as anybody else—that is at least as two of the most prominent of them tell their friends this morning. Messrs. McKinley and Reed, the Republican leaders of the House, are willing to fix a day for closing the debate, but the vast majority of their Republican colleagues oppose them, and are in favor of resorting to any and all sorts of measures by which a vote may be prevented at this session.

Representative Hopkins of the Lynchburg district says the labor party not only in his district but in the whole of Virginia is well organized, that they have the support of the farmers, and that if the Democrats advise they will unite with them. He read the GAZETTE's correspondent a letter from a farmer in Halifax county, who says that Mr. Paul Edmunds will try for the Democratic nomination in his district, but that the farmers there all want to vote for him, Hopkins, again. He says he knows a way by which the whole labor vote of the country can be won over to the Democratic national ticket; but he wouldn't tell what that way was.

The Senate to-day, after the morning hour, took up the fisheries treaty, in opposition to which Mr. Hale made a speech.

It is rumored about the Capital that though Senator Vest may move to discharge the Committee on the Judiciary from the further consideration of the nomination of Mr. Fuller as Chief Justice, and that the Senate proceed to vote upon that nomination, the Republicans have strength enough to defeat the motion and hold the nomination in the committee until after the Presidential election, when, if the Democratic ticket be elected, they will confirm it at once to spite the Democrats, who really don't want it confirmed; but if the Republican ticket be successful, hold it up until the Republican President shall make a nomination.

Gen. Lee has returned from Charlottesville, West Virginia, where he went to deliver a confederate memorial address. A West Virginian, who was present, on the occasion, says the General's speech pleased every body in the large crowd that heard it, and that it was received with prolonged applause. Representatives Brown, of the Danville district, and Bowen, of the Arlington district, who have been here for some time, returned to day.

Senator Blackburn, who is a member of the Senate committee now investigating the manner in which the civil service law has been executed, says it is the intention of the Republican majority of that committee to prosecute their investigation all the summer, for the purpose of finding something out of which to make party capital for the fall campaign, but that up to this time they have been by no means successful, as not only the law, but the rules, have been, if any thing, too well observed.

Representative Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, republican, this morning, seeing the front of General Spaulding's desk, which is in the front row on the Democratic side, immediately in front of the Speaker's seat, covered with a bandanna handkerchief, pinned a small U. S. flag in front of the desk of Mr. Ketchum, which occupies a similar position on the Republican side.

To-day was the regular day for a meeting of the House educational committee, which has before them the Blair bill, but, as usual, no quorum was present.

William Cleaver, a horse doctor of this city, and well-known in Fairfax county, died very suddenly this morning. He was under conviction at the time of the trial of John Surratt, but was released by the government because he promised to testify that he saw Surratt here on the day of the Lincoln assassination, though it was proved on the trial that Surratt was no where near here on that day.

Among the Virginians invited to be present at the grand banquet and ratification meeting of the Virginia Democratic Association of this city next Friday night, are the following: Senator Daniel, Senator-elect Barbours, representatives Lee, O'Fallon, and Wise, Gov. Lee, R. Tucker, John Gould, Judge Harris and R. F. Beirne.

[COMMUNICATED.]

"Your papers are on file and will receive due consideration."

A gentleman called with his Congressman on Mr. Bayard, who was informed that a consular appointment was desired, whereupon the much annoyed and somewhat irritable diplomat, exclaimed, "Your papers are on file, sir, and will receive due consideration." "My papers are not on file," said the applicant to his Congressman on leaving the State Department, "I have them in my pocket." The next day the applicant called on the imperious imperio, the secretary of the Secretary, and informed him that Mr. Bayard was mistaken in thinking that his papers were on file, he had not yet completed them and would file them in a few days. Descending on the elevator he sat face to face with a very good looking middle aged gentleman who remarked, "fine day sir." "Too warm for me sir," said the applicant. "Nothing further was said until the two walked outside when the stranger remarked, "Fine view from here sir." "Externally, sir, the view is very fine," "Oh, I understand. I would like to tell you of a very curious thing that happened just now. My name is —; I am from Toledo, O.; I am an applicant for the consular appointment to Toronto, Can. I called on the Secretary of State just now and told him my mission. He exclaimed, 'Oh, yes, I know all about it. Your papers are on file and will receive due consideration.' 'Why, sir, here are my papers,' taking a bundle of papers from his pocket. Do you suppose Mr. Bayard took me for some one else or was he telling me a —? 'Ha, ha, ha! Ho, ho, ho!' roared applicant No. 1. 'What are you laughing at, sir,' demanded No. 2. 'Why, the devil and Tom Walker, sir; the very same thing happened to me yesterday.'"

Mr. Jefferson M. Levy, present owner of Monticello, has furnished the old Jefferson homestead with furniture just arrived from Paris. The furniture is in the style in vogue at the reign of Louis XIV.

A Binghamton paper is authority for the statement that the Erie Railway Company will put up in all its stations signs reading: "Kissing on the platform strictly prohibited." This is a step in the right direction. Any such effort to make travel less hazardous should meet with the unqualified approval of the whole country.

Mr. T. Clayton, consul at Para, Brazil, has written a letter correcting a statement to the effect that the ex-Confederates who settled in Brazil after the war were in an impoverished condition. Mr. Clayton says it is true that some of the settlers have not prospered, but that most of them are industrious and pushing, have achieved a large measure of success, and are looked upon as model citizens. The successful members of the colony are satisfied, and do not wish to return to the United States.

Tammany Hall ratified the national Democratic ticket at the Academy of Music last night. John Cochrane presided. General Cochrane in his speech said that for the first time Tammany met without its walls. So jubilant had the old walls of Tammany become that they had ignited by spontaneous combustion at the nomination of Cleveland and Thurman. Governor Hill made the speech of the evening. He spoke in great praise of President Cleveland, Mr. Thurman and the platform. During the Governor's speech one of the "braves" exclaimed: "Three cheers for the next governor of New York!" and for several minutes he was unable to continue his address.

Fire and Loss of Life.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The tenement house No 43 Second street, in which the fatal fire took place early this morning, was the property of Batholild & Fleichman. It was furnished with fire escapes, but they were rendered useless by the rapid spread of the flames. The actual damage done to the property was about $6,000. How the fire broke out is yet a mystery. The list of casualties as completed this morning embraces 13 persons. Gustav Barthe, the janitor, who was found on the roof so badly burned that he died there, is so far the only one on the dead list. He was a German, and by trade a map colorer. He lost his life by remaining to warn the other tenants. His wife got down the rear fire escape but was badly bruised in the attempt.

Locusts.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Dispatches from several points in Illinois and Iowa state that the locusts which are making their appearance in such great numbers are not molesting fruit, grain or vegetables as yet. The only damage done is the killing of young and tender trees, many of which will die from the incisions made from the locusts in depositing their eggs. The secretary of the Iowa State Agricultural Society says he has received information from Muscatine that there are a million of locusts in that county, but no special damage has yet been reported. It seems to be the general opinion here that the locusts in eastern Iowa are not of the 17 years variety, but of a harmless class that come around frequently, seven years ago being the time of the last visitation.

S. troops going South. The section came up and the robbers, realizing the motive of the fireman, escaped to the mountains.

Mr. Bryant, from the Committee on Streets, presented a report on the petition of sundry property-owners on Patrick street, between King and Princess streets, for the paving of the three squares designated. The committee in their report suggested that Council could order the work to be done under the 334 section of the city code, or postpone the consideration of the matter for the present. On motion the work was ordered to be done under the 334 section of the city code by the following vote: Ayes, Messrs. Agnew, Burke, Goodrich, Bryant, Leadbeater and Mr. President—6. Nos. Messrs. Lambdin and McKenzie—2.

The same committee reported in favor of granting the petition of Wm. F. Vincent for the resurfacing of the curb in front of his house, on Prince street, near Alfred, the petitioner furnishing the necessary material, with the understanding, however, that in future property-owners will have to pay for such work themselves. The report was adopted.

The same committee submitted a report on the estimated cost of certain improvements on Henry street, stating that to extend the present sewer on that thoroughfare to Cameron street and to fill in and pave the gutter to Princess street would entail an expenditure of $3,421.95. A motion to lay the report on the table was lost by the following vote: Ayes, Messrs. Burke, Lambdin, Leadbeater and McKenzie—4. Nos. Messrs. Agnew, Goodrich, Bryant and Mr. President—4. The report was subsequently ordered to lie over until next meeting.

A resolution, offered by Mr. McKenzie, empowering the Committee on Streets to purchase lime for the preservation of the health of the city was laid on the table.

A proposal from Orlando Nightingill for painting the pumps of the city; also a petition of Samuel Madden for permission to repair his house, on south St. Asaph street; also a petition of A. W. The board proceeded to the chamber of the Common Council for the purpose of participating in the election of a City Surveyor, and upon their return adjourned.

The following was received from the Board of Aldermen and their action concurred in, to wit: Upon the petition of Wm. F. Vincent to have the curb set and gutter paved in front of his property, on Prince street.

The report of the Committee on Streets upon the petition of sundry citizens for the paving of three squares on Patrick street, north of King street, was received from the Board of Aldermen and laid over.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

NEW YORK, June 13.—There was a moderate business in the stock market at the opening this morning, but it was confined to a few stocks to a greater extent than usual for the
